so many ways ut doing it, our as any as the other, that there is no choice; besides it depends apon circumstances. But the commonest way is this—there sin't much skill in it, only beginness; three of us go together.

To a question—No; we hardly ever work alone unless eferciumstances are very favorable or we are hard up. Of course anybody can take a main and any and are an excellent window are hard up. Of course anybody can take a main art, picking pockets don't pay like burgary—a main has to make so many more operations, and consequently runs so many smore operations, and consequently runs so many smore operations, and consequently runs so many smore risks of being cught. But never inind, three of us go together, each one having his peculiar daily. We go into a crowd—any large crowd, but profar a still crowd, such as you find insteading to a positical speech, elections are rich times with us—and to suppose a case in such a closely crowded throng, we single out a man who is promising, and whose mousy we want; one of us works his way lo front of him so as to crowd against his left sem, another gels bitman's hand, in this particular case it is supposed that our game is a stranger having considerable in the hard of the countryman, whose first impoles its to restore it, and as he can't relae his left arm he takes his hand from his pocket, when the operator dives and gets the money. This action the poor deril does not feel nine times out of tur, is he agreed the country of the country of the country of the septiments. Such as the series and gets the money. This action the poor deril does not feel nine times out of tur, is he agreed the crown has a calculated by the crowd it. The one who did the act actives the first in the operator dives and gets the money that a many acres as he can profitably successively in the approach of the farmer is to restore it, and as he can't relae his left arm he takes his hand from his pocket, when the operator dives and gets the money are all the population of the farmer is to restore i back. In this particular case it is supposed that our game is a tranger having considerable in money about him. He is careful of his money, and keeps his hand on his pocket-book, which is mo his right hand pocket. When the proper time rounes the man behind tips up or smashes down the hat of the countryman, whose first impulse is to restore it, and as he won't relac his left arm he takes his hand from his pocket, when the operator dives and gets the money. This action the poor devil does not feel nite time out of ten; he is generally mad at having his hat knocked over his eyes and turns to see who did it. The one who did the act seizes the first "dat" near him and showes him shead, then dres and rushes strongh the crowd; this we sell do and meet at some appointed place to divide profits. Generally the man whose mouey we are dividing it. Of course, we conform to circumstances in the way of operating, but this is a bir limitarintion. Sometimes, however, when it is safe weadopt the way of litting the himing of the pocket and so extracting the money. If we are caught in this, the same manner of getting away is adopted."

"Well, George, as to operations on street-cars and railrants?"

"In respect to the former, they are generally "the respect to the former, they are generally the strength of the pocket and so extracting the money. well, deorge, as to operations on street-cars and radirants?"

"In respect to the former, they are generally nothing but forcible robberies; we get together on the platform, and by creating a row take a humb money by force before he knows it. And there is not much difference in our way of doing things on the railroads. We pick out our man, and at some stopping place, where he gets out our man, and at some stopping place, where he gets out our mannage to get uhead of him, the other behind him, and by josiling and causing confusion we have no a fleuity. Why! I show made $8,000 in tollowing the Prince of Wales when he was here, and could have made more than that in tollowing Lincoln from Springfield to Washing ton il come of us hadn't been tools. You see, suspicion was strong on us, and we assyed over in Bufalto to gemble, and were easight and convicted. They could not flud anything against me, but one of the party had some money which was identified, and the Bufalo Judges never let a man go it there is a shadow of a chance of holding him, and when he is found guilty they pile it ou awful heavy. A New York Judge wouldn't have given me half as much as I got from that Buffalo mab, and I believe I should have got clear away."

To a question—"O, yes; there are women picking the clear away. The content of the clear away is the stages and the who pick women's pockets. They usually go alone, and frequent herse cars, stages and churches—sometimes theatree, cars, certs and lectures. It is a risky tuelness, for when a woman fastens on syou she sticks. "But how do you know a man has a 'good plie ?"

"Ob, that's easy enough. In the first place we 'spot' merchants from the country who are in the eity to buy goods, and then there is no difficulty in finding out where they keep the measy. The principle of the whole this gia, that a man having an unsually large amount of money on his person will be so careful of it that he will often feel by see whether it is usic. Bestdes, knowing these mea, we watch them, and so learn which once are the most promising. Sometimes, too, those operators who stay in New York or other large cities are informed by brokers' clerks and others—they get a small share, about five per cent., of the gains—of a certain marchant or banker having in his possessaion a large sum; if that is known, the many very likely loses his mosey."

"Well, George, what is the average amount taken from a man's pocket?"

"it inn't so very tsuch. I have followed a man two or three days with my puts, and only got $5 or $5 from him, because he kept the bulk of his money in draft. We get 'shipped up' in that way once in a while. Then, again, I have 'raked in' as much as $8,000. But a good average is $50; and that is very good in ordinary times."

"Finally what is the great danger in this business?"
